

Finding messages

If you have many messages and folders, it is easy to lose track of them all. You know you have saved a message on a particular topic, but where? YAM's search function solves this problem.

In the upper half of the window you define the query. On the left you can select one or more folders in which to search. On the right you define the Search criterion. In the lower half of the window you will get a list of messages which match the query.

Functions of the buttons

everywhere

Includes all folders in your search.

Use filter settings

Replaces the search criterion with a filter.

Add as new filter

Creates a new filter using the current search criterion.

Start search

Starts the search process. Matching messages are shown in the results list below. The search can be stopped by clicking on Abort.

Select matched

Selects all the messages listed as a result of the search, highlighting them in the message list of the main window.

Read message

Displays the contents of the last selected message in the results list. Double-clicking on the name in the results list has the same effect.
